MS GITTIN' INTO POLITICAL HURRICANE...

Your in and year out it has been proven that anytime the farmers & ranchers of this country get their business tangled in the webs of politics their troubles usually come home with big litter of kittens or pups, or both. Storm warnings are flying all over Washington these days as the Democrats and the Congress stir the pot. Just the other day Sen. John Melcher of Montana, not exactly a noted dairy production area, dropped a bill in the hopper to limit casein, milk protein products and mixtures thereof to 50% of the 1977-1981 average. Melcher pointed out that in 1982 casein imports reached 176.5 million lbs., an increase over 1981 of 38%. Melcher expressed shock that USDA had not taken steps already authorized to limit these imports in the face of the fact USDA is trying to slash $1.36 billion in (CONT. ON PAGE 17B)

Park Ridge, Ill. - Caught between the uncertainties of what a gigantic payment-in-kind program will do to feed costs and the impact of weather conditions that took a heavier toll on cattle, the beef industry is looking at a somewhat shaky immediate future. But the outlook has its brighter side, depending primarily on the speed and extent of nation's economic recovery and its influence on consumer demand for beef. (CONT. ON PAGE 17B)

Texas Cattle Feeders Placements Up 16%

Texas were down 1 percent from a year ago, according to the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, but had increased 1 percent from the April total.

Placements during April reached 370,000 head, up 16 percent from last year, while the monthly marketings were unchanged at 340,000 head.

On the Northern High Plains, the state's largest cattle-raising region, the May 1 total on feed was down 8 percent from last year to 1.1 million head.

"The severe weather during the winter and early spring held weight gains to a minimum in many Panhandle feedlots, and during the first few months of 1983, most cattle were going to slaughter at lighter weights," Murfield reported.

Slaughter weights in many feedlots remained low during April, although they should improve as warmer weather returns to the High Plains, he added.

SANTA GERTRUDIS NEWS

Santa Circuit
By BUDDY SMITH

The rain and Mississippi mud didn't deter cattle breeders from making the 1983 Southern Classic Sale one of the "milestones" in the Santa Gertrudis breed. Records were broken with a standing room only crowd who saw 70 lots of Santa Gertrudis cattle gross $238,760.00 for an average of $3,397.86. This was one of the highest averaging sales of Santas over recorded east of the Mississippi river. L & L Farms "Poll Mule" 556 sold three-quarters interest to the "Southern Syndicate" for $48,000.00. This is a record high for a Poll Santa bull and a record high for a Santa bull sold at public auction east of the Mississippi river. The "Southern Syndicate", led by Pauline Herring's Ridgepoint Ranch had a contending bidder in the "Georgia Group" who was made up of Joe Garcia's River Oaks Ranch, Hugh Carr's Dry Creek Ranch and Ray Garman's G-G Ranch. Another noteworthy contender was King Ranch of Kingsville, Texas. At the conclusion of the sale, the "Georgia Group" bought the figure. Other members of the "Southern Syndicate" are Vee Welsch's Trails End Ranch, J.T. Conner, Melvin Burchfield's All-Bamo Ranch and George Jacobs.

High selling female was Fullen Farms 299 cow that sold safe in calf to male 11 to George W. Robinson, Jr., Baton Rouge, Louisiana, for $6,000.00. Second high female was El Colina Ranches entry that sold to Macon Graves of Fayette, Alabama for $6,400.00. Second high selling bull of the day was Diamond S Ranch's son of Rocky Christmas that sold to Porter Dunnaway for $7,000.00.

The Southern Classic was hosted by Melvin Burchfield at his All-Bamo Ranch in New Albany, Mississippi. It was one of the largest attended, most actively bidding sales I have been to in a long time. It clearly showed the demand for Santas in the Southeast.

Ed Bullman suffered another heart attack while attending the Annual Meeting of S.G.B.I. in Kingsville. According to the last report I had, he is doing satisfactorily.

Shae Phillips, son of Diamond S Ranch Manager, Ned Phillips had his foot severed in a "3-wheeler" accident. Your prayers would be helpful in making the foot grow back successfully.

The Youth Activities Committee is trying to create a college scholarship fund for deserving Junior Santa Gertrudis ramblers going to college. Your donation and input into this fund would be appreciated.

The Mossy Oaks Production Sale is this week on Thursday the 19th. It will be followed by the Tri Star Sale on Friday. Plan to go! Mossy Oaks is selling some embryo transplants as well as top poll and horn cattle. Wason Ranch's bull which is eligible for the Western Heritage Futurity and the Pioneer Sweepstakes. Semen will be sold on Mossy Oaks' National Champions: Mountain Man 810, Chaparral 410 and Alexander 1117, the sire of Massey's National Champion 07 bull.

Talking about Pete Massey's 07 bull, he said a syndicated share of his 07 bull to Macon Graves, Fayette, Alabama. Macon and I flew down for the Annual Meeting and stopped by Pete's to look at his calves. They are good! I predict that the share holders on 07 will be leading the pack in Poll breeders.

J & N Farms of Georgia have a three-

Western Heritage Grosses $2 Million Plus

The eighth annual Western Heritage Sale held May 14 in Houston proved to be as successful as all in the past. Sponsored by former Texas Governor John Connally, Lewis Pearce and Joe Marchman, the event set many records as twenty four Santa Gertrudis cattle grossed $518,800 to average $21,616; twenty six Quarter Horses grossed $861,800 to average $32,760; and twenty six pieces of western art grossed $975,500 to average $37,519. This made a total gross sale for the auction part of the sale $2,372,800.

There was also over $1,000,000 worth of art sold in the silent auction held on Friday night, May 13.

Topping the Santa Gertrudis part of the sale was a one quarter, limited breeding interest with 500 straws of semen from the Joe Marchman Ranch consignment Jomar 54/8. Jomar 54/8 holds the breed record for grand champions at seventeen times. A group of four breeders went together to give $105,000 for this outstanding herd bull. The combination was King Ranch, Dan Flynn, Malcolm Gravley and Hickory Hill Ranch.

A one quarter breeding interest in K3 Vago 638/6, a consignment from King Ranch, brought $76,000 going to Pat Weider Ranches of Victoria.

Topping the female segment of the sale, and also setting a breed record,

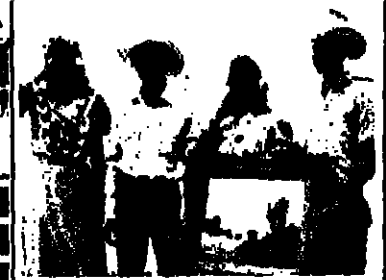

Mrs. Robert Graft Magazine, Bozeman, MT, to own the Briggs Ranch bred to her sire, making bred 872/2.

Topping the Quarter part of the sale was the stallion Doc O'Leary, consigned by Ranch of Frisco, and purchased by McFarland of Houston for $100,000.

SANTA GERTRUDIS

We couldn't 'Waite' till he got here.

Nine Bar is proud to announce the addition of Tootler Waite as horse trainer for the ranch. Tootler's credentials qualify him for who's who in the quarter horse business. A renowned calf roper, Tootler qualified for the College National Finals four consecutive years, and was calf roping champion in 1972 and 1973. During the eight years that he followed the PRCA rodeo circuit, Tootler won the calf roping contest in more than 100 rodeos.

For the past three years, however, his interests have shifted to the cutting horse industry and Tootler has concentrated his efforts in training and showing championship quality cutting horses. In 1980 he showed Leonard Milligan, World Champion Calf Roping Horse and 1980 Copenhagen-Skool Super Horse.

Nine Bar Ranch is fortunate to have a man the caliber of Tootler Waite.

Mississippi Brangus Breeders Sponsor Educational Event

A sunny day greeted over 100 Brangus enthusiasts to the Mississippi Field Day hosted by Pine Lane Ranch, Laurel, Mississippi, May 7, 1983. Brangus breeders and spectators representing Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas were on hand for the educational event. The day began with a MBBA membership meeting.

Joe Frank Sanderson owner of Pine Lane Ranch welcomed the crowd to the field day. Following the welcome, a judging contest headed by Glen R. FFA Livestock Specialist, was held. Contestants evaluated bulls, cows and yearling heifers on both phenotype characteristics and performance data. Buddy Adams, Covington, Georgia, was the top judge in the senior division, while Gene Barnett, Rogersville, Alabama captured top honors in the junior division.

Glenn Brinkman, Brinks Brangus, Slaterdale, Texas presented an educational talk on establishing a breeding program following the judging contest. A chicken lunch was served courtesy of Pine Lane Ranch and afterwards, Larry Lofis, Seminary, Mississippi, Larry Fitzgerald, Bush, Louisiana and Haynes Floyd, Como, Mississippi, discussed the judging classes. An educational forum with the audience participation was then guided by Mark England, Seminary, Mississippi, Jerry Morrow, International Brangus Breeders Association Executive Vice-President and Brinkman. Morrow elaborated on the past history of the cattle industry and the importance of designing a program with fact. Morrow emphasized the relation of performance to visual appraisal and encouraged breeders to collect facts for sales to commercial cattlemen.

Clipson Ranch Limousin

On December 20, 46 heifers and 4 bulls were jetted to the United States aboard a 707 charter Global International Airways flight. The cattle were greeted at the Boca Chica Naval Base in Key West, Fla. by Dr. Galen Krill of the U.S.D.A. who then trucked the herd to the Harry S. Truman Animal Import Center located on the opposite side of the island. Upon successful completion of all tests in Florida, the 50 head were trucked to Barnes Livestock Trucking Co. to Horizon Limousin Ranch. Howard Barnes, also transported the first Limousin animal permanently entering the United States from the quarantine station in Clifton, New Jersey to Seminole, Oklahoma in January, 1978. "We feel confident that the unique genetic 'power' we are bringing to North America will be a valuable asset not only to the Limousin breed but to the cattle industry in general," says Dr. Lobbie, a veteran of Limousin breeding for 16 years.

New Farm Shop Building Package

Behlen Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Nebraska, is introducing a new, low cost, do-it-yourself metal building designed to serve the needs of rural and suburban residents. The 21'x28' garage/shop building, called the Countryman, simply bolts together with relatively little time or labor involved. Nothing is complicated about the system. There is no frame to build. Wall and roof panels are self-supporting and assemble with 3/8" diameter bolts.

All components are relatively light weight; the heaviest member being a roof purlin section weighing 82 pounds. This is not a light-duty structure, however. It's built to last. The building is designed to withstand a 30 p.s.f. snow load and a 100 m.p.h. wind. Wall panels of 24-gauge steel receive a baked-on finish of high-grade white polyester.

The building package includes a window, walk door and overhead door frame. Options are limited to the size of overhead door opening. Some customizing is possible, the company said. Alternative applications might include a summer cottage or office.

Sperry New Holland Coloring Book Helps Tell Story of Our Farmers

A sixteen-page coloring book, designed to help explain the important role farmers play in the nation's economy, has been created by Sperry New Holland. "The Kernel and the Reliable American Farmer" is based on the company's award-winning Reliable American Farmer campaign. 100,000 of the books have already been distributed to Sperry New Holland dealers for use in local schools and farm organization education programs. A full sample package, which farm people can use to see if the coloring book fits into their plans, is available for $1.00 to cover handling costs. While the economic story may be a bit too much for children to understand, we're sure the message the book conveys will also be read by parents. The book will also be read by parents. The book will also be read by parents. The book will also be read by parents.

Among the facts cited in the book: Many of the items purchased at the supermarket are not food items, but people consider these as part of their food bill. A farmer can spend as much for a farm machine such as a combine, as most Americans spend for a house, furniture and automobile. For instance, one combine or tractor tire contains as much rubber as all the tires on 15 average size automobiles. A packet of 10 sample coloring books can be obtained by sending a check for $1.00 to Kernel Coloring Book, Sperry New Holland, Box 7, New Holland, PA 17057. Organizations wishing to use the coloring book can purchase them in lots of 100 for $25, postpaid.

Bovatec Discussed At Annual Nutrition Conference

The improved performance of feedlot cattle fed Bovatec® (lasalocid) was discussed during the 34th Annual Montana Livestock Nutrition Conference held recently in Bozeman.

Dr. T.M. Frye of the Department of Agriculture and Animal Health, Roche Chemical Division, Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., gave an overview of the new feed additive, Bovatec.

Bovatec, introduced by Roche in September, 1982 for use with confined beef cattle, is the only feed additive that both increases rate of gain and improves feed efficiency in feedlot cattle. According to Dr. Frye, Senior Nutritionist in Roche's Technical Service Department, Bovatec affects nutrient utilization by favorably altering ruminal microbial metabolism. Prior to Bovatec introduction, dosage utilization was measured in 15 feedlot trials throughout the country, explaining Dr. Frye. A variety of typical growing and finishing rations were used. Bovatec was tested at various levels ranging from 0 to 60 grams per ton of complete feed, said Dr. Frye. Data were collected for average daily gain, average daily feed intake and feed efficiency. Interim performance data were also collected in order to assess adaptation patterns to various levels of the drug. Pooled performance results of the various studies showed that 30 grams of Bovatec per ton of complete feed resulted in optimal improvements in cattle performance, reported Dr. Frye. At this level (30 g/ton), average daily gain increased by 5.3 percent compared to non-medicated controls, and feed efficiency improved 3.1 percent. According to Dr. Frye, interim performance evaluations determined that cattle adapt quickly and easily to Bovatec, and it may be fed at the recommended levels of 25 to 30 grams per ton after ration adaptation. In feedlot trials during the first 28 days on Bovatec, cattle showed a 12.3 percent increase in average daily gain and 15.4 percent improvement in feed efficiency. Dr. Frye also discussed the long term safety/toxicity of Bovatec. Feedlot trials results showed that Bovatec is safe to use in cattle at recommended dosage levels. In addition, the feed additive requires no withdrawal period prior to slaughter. Bovatec is supplied by the Department of Agriculture and Animal Health, Roche Chemical Division, Hoffmann-La Roche Inc., Nutley, N.J., 07110. Roche is a major manufacturer of drug feed additives, vitamins and animal health products.

for maximum semen production. A strict quality control program is utilized throughout the collection and freezing process.

Dr. Avery explains that the primary benefit of the semen collection is to "bank superior genetics." A secondary reason would be for added insurance for the bull owner.

Embryo collection, transfer and freezing services are provided by S.R.C. Embryo collections and transfers may be performed at the center or "on the farm."

S.R.C. also provides complete A.I. programs by qualified technicians. The demand for A.I. has increased in the beef industry. A.I. enables the beef producer to use top quality genetics at a reasonable cost.

TUCO Publishes Report On New Dry Cow Mastitis Treatment

A management report introducing Alhadry Plus, a new dry cow mastitis product, has just been published by TUCO, Division of The Upjohn Company.

The report includes comment from a university expert on the significance — of subclinical mastitis, a profit-robbing disease often overlooked by dairymen.

In addition, the report documents the effectiveness of this new dry cow industry that A.I. has improved the efficiency of the dairy cow," Dr. Avery said. "In the beef industry, the aim is to increase the quality and the performance of the beef animal."

"Health and Handling Of Feeder Calves" Packet Available

Nearly 2 percent of all feeder calves die after their arrival in the feedlot. In addition to that death loss, shrink, sickness, treatment costs and poor feed utilization account for a total loss of $20 to $30 for every animal entering the feedlot. Reducing this tremendous loss is the subject of a new pamphlet published by the Livestock Conservation Institute.

"Health and Handling of Feeder Calves" covers such topics as: preconditioning; processing prior to movement; handling cattle at auctions, markets and the feedlot; what to look for before ordering cattle; and processing new arrivals.

A single copy of the pamphlet can be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Livestock Conservation Institute, Dept. FCH, 230 Livestock Exchange Building, South St. Paul, MN 55076. Prices for quantity orders are available on request.

Livestock Conservation Institute is a non-profit organization dedicated to reducing livestock losses caused by poor handling, parasites and diseases.

It also includes diagrams and suggestions for pen and chute designs suitable for both large and small feedlot operations. These include ideas for receiving areas, hospital pens, work areas and squeeze chutes.

The pamphlet was co-authored by Dr. John Herick, formerly with Iowa State University and Temple Grandin, Grandin Livestock Systems. Herick has been involved with preconditioning and calf processing programs for many years and is chairman of IAT's Feeder Cattle Health Committee. Grandin is a livestock consultant and has designed many handling facilities for large and small feedlots as well as packing plants. She is chairman of IAT's Livestock Handling Committee.

Student-Invented Tractor Hitching Device Granted Patent

Memphis, Tenn. — A new tractor hitching device, invented by four Kansas State University students, has been granted a patent by the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

The students developed the device, called the "Handy Hooker," in a class taught by G.E. Fairbanks, professor of mechanical engineering. The invention was the top award in the national All-American Student Design Competition.

The students, who are now in their senior year, are Mark Boguski, 8805 E. 105th, Overland Park; Todd Casey, Glen Elder; Dwight Chipperfield, McDonald; and Edward Smalley, St. Francis.

The "Handy Hooker" is a mechanical device that attaches a farm tractor to an implement in a matter of seconds. It is a simple, rugged device that can be used on a wide variety of implements.

The device is made of heavy-duty steel and is designed to last for many years. It is a simple, rugged device that can be used on a wide variety of implements.

Grazon Herbicide Is Now Available in Pellets For Range And Pasture

DALLAS, TX — Grazon herbicide is now available in pellets in the Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico market. Larry Wee, product sales manager for Dow Chemical U.S.A., announced today.

The new herbicide formulation is available as Grazon 10K Pellets herbicide in 60-pound packages, Wee said. Two liquid formulations — Grazon P+D and Grazon PC herbicides — were introduced a year ago.

All three Grazon products contain plicloric acid as a basic active ingredient. Grazon P+D also contains 2,4-D. Grazon PC can be tank mixed with 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T or silvex.

Grazon 10K Pellets control, reduce or suppress a wide range of broadleaf weeds and woody plants, including: broom snakeweed, prickly pear, tassel, jiloe, cholla cactus, whitebrush, sand shinnery oak, junipers (cedars), blackbrush, graminio, guajillo, Mesquite rose, multiflora rose, shrub live oak, Gambel oak, locust and sumac.

Grazon 10K Pellets may be applied as spot or broadcast treatments on permanent grass pastures, rangeland and fence rows. Moisture takes the plicloric acid to the roots of the plant.

Wee said that, in addition to large-area broadcast treatments, landowners will find Grazon 10K Pellets convenient to carry in saddlebags or pickup truck and hand-treat small patches of undesirable brush or weeds. For example, as little as 8.75 ounces of pellets will treat 1,000 square feet of broom snakeweed.

One to two teaspoonfuls will kill a prickly pear plant that covers five square feet, Wee said. The same amount will take out a shoulder-high cedar.

Grazon 10K Pellets should be available at many local herbicide dealers. If they are not, landowners may ask their dealers to get them through the following distributor/agents, from whom they may also buy Grazon 10K direct if they possess a restricted-use permit:

Chem Tac, Inc., Fredericksburg, Texas; Donnell Ag Products, Graham, Texas; Estes Chemicals, Inc., Wichita Falls, Texas; Rushing Sheffield & Company, San Angelo, Texas, and V.A. Snell & Company, San Antonio, Texas.

The mouth of the Statue of Liberty measures three feet in width.

FDA Approves Albady Plus for Treatment of Subclinical Mastitis

The dry cow intramammary infusion Albady Plus suspension is now available to dairy producers for use in treating subclinical mastitis caused by strains of Staphylococcus aureus and Streptococcus agalactiae.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently approved use of Albady Plus, making it the first over-the-counter dry cow product in the country to contain a penicillin-novobiocin combination. Albacillin, a lactating cow mastitis treatment which, like Albady Plus, is marketed by TUCO, Division of The Upjohn Company, contains the same antibiotics and is the only approved, over-the-counter mastitis treatment product for lactating cows in this country to contain two antibiotics.

Each 10 ml. vial of Albady Plus contains 200,000 IU penicillin G procaine, 400 mg novobiocin sodium and 50 mg chlorbutanol. At drying off, each quarter of the cow should be infused with the contents of a single 10 ml. vial of Albady Plus suspension. In accordance with FDA regulations, milk from treated cows must not be used for food during the first 72 hours after drying off and treated animals must not be slaughtered for food for 30 days following infusion.

Research conducted by The Upjohn Company has shown that Albady Plus is active against the most common bacteria associated with mastitis, a disease which affects an estimated 40 percent of all dairy cows in the U.S. According to the National Mastitis Council (NMC), the annual economic loss resulting from clinical and subclinical mastitis is $225 per cow per year. Subclinical mastitis, a condition not easily detected by the dairyman, is responsible for approximately two-thirds of this loss.

"In field trials involving over 800 cows in dairy herds across the country, Albady Plus proved effective in reducing the incidence of subclinical mastitis caused by Strep. ag. and Staph. aureus," says Paul Luthwig, product manager for TUCO. "We conducted research with 11 different combinations of penicillin and novobiocin in dry cow formulations on these cows; the most effective combination — 200,000 IU penicillin and 400 mg novobiocin — yielded a 98 percent lowest square cure rate for Strep. ag. and a 74 percent lowest square cure rate for Staph. aureus."

The NMC alerts dairymen that selection treatment (treating only diagnosed quarter infections) may miss 20-40 percent of infected udders at drying off. Therefore, it is recommended that dairymen using Albady Plus treat all quarters of all cows at drying off in order to gain maximum control and cure of subclinical mastitis.

Ford Promotes On-Farm Safety

To promote farm safety, Ford Tractor Operations is providing tractor safety decals to more than 250,000 farm families free-of-charge through a direct mail campaign in the United States and Canada.

Ford tractor dealers always have provided tractor safety decals as service parts and now also have supplies available free-of-charge for their customers, according to Chuchman, marketing manager for Ford Tractor's North America Operations.

"Many of our tractors have been in use for 30 years or more and the kind of service record we've had is a testament to the durability of our products," Chuchman explains.

"By sending these safety decals to a million customers, we are helping to make the farm a safer place to live and work."

The safety labels are available to those installed on current Ford tractor models. The decals instruct operators to protect themselves and others by wearing their seat belts.

"We're certain farmers are conscious in their day-to-day operations, but safety decals are a reminder for all of us," Mr. Jones adds. "Taking a few minutes to place a decal and follow its instructions can prevent an unfortunate accident."

As part of Ford's continuing commitment to farm safety, Ford Tractor Operations always has made safety decals available through its

Sulfur Deficiency Downs Animal Production Ups Feed Costs

It has been well documented that soil sulfur deficiencies, now common on farms across the country, can curb yield, quality and protein content of field crops and pastures.

Now, if recent research at the University of California (Davis) is any indication, sulfur-deficient soils also can suppress livestock performance and prevent animals from using feed efficiently.

What do sulfur levels have to do with animal performance? Plenty, if the animal is produced on that acreage as fed livestock, says Dr. Milt Jones, coordinator of the study.

"The whole situation becomes a problem that ripples through an entire livestock operation," he says. "It creates a domino effect. If your soils are short on sulfur, then your livestock may be, too."

Like crops, animals need to have adequate sulfur in their diets. The nutrient plays a major role in starch and cellulose digestion, urea utilization, protein synthesis and microbial gas production. According to Jones, fertilizing with sulfur appears to be the best way to avoid sulfur deficiency in both crops and animals.

In the study, subclover and ryegrass fields that received an average of 40 lbs. a decal and follow its instructions can prevent an unfortunate accident."

Fertilizing pastures with sulfur also improved the animals' average daily weight gain. Lambs fed pellets made from sulfur-fertilized clover gained 0.41 lb/day over a 57-day period, significantly more than the 0.31 lb/day gained with low-sulfur feed. Lambs receiving sulfur-fertilized ryegrass fodder gained 0.19 lb/day, more than twice the 0.07 lb/day gained with low-sulfur pellets.

Feed efficiency, or pounds feed consumed per pound animal weight gained, was also affected by pasture fertilization. Lambs fed clover grown with sulfur consumed nine pounds feed for each pound weight gained. With low-sulfur feed, 11 pounds were required.

Similarly, with ryegrass fodder, feed efficiency fell from 19 pounds feed per pound gained to 48 lb/lb gained. In other words, 2.5 times as much low-sulfur fodder was required to produce the same weight gain as a given amount of sulfur-fertilized feed.

"Left uncorrected, sulfur shortages produce lower yields almost less than half of what they should be and substantially increase a producer's feed costs," Jones says.

"Crop and animal quality also suffer with insufficient levels of sulfur. The percentage clover in sulfur-poor fields can be as low as 10 to 20 percent, instead of an optimum of 60 to 70 percent. This greatly reduces forage protein levels and ultimately, the animals' weight gain."

Sulfur alone cannot solve all of a livestock producer's problems, cautions Dr. Sam Tisdale, president of The Sulphur Institute, Washington, D.C. But as more cases of sulfur deficiencies are reported, farmers should make an extra effort to monitor crop and animal levels of this vital nutrient.

Dietary supplements can be used to fill the sulfur gap. However, research has shown sulfur fertilization to be a superior method of maintaining animal levels — at least as far as dry cattle intake is concerned.

Dr. Jones suggests livestock producers consider a leaf analysis to assay the sulfur status of forage. (Alfalfa and clover leaves at flowering should be at least 0.20 percent sulfur). These results combined with crop and field history, will help develop a sound pasture fertility program.

Out of every dollar spent by livestock families for the care of their livestock, the medical profession receives 50 cents.

Battelle Forecasts Ag Market for Microencapsulated Materials

Business opportunities in microencapsulated materials will be identified and 1993 markets will be forecast in a study recently proposed by Battelle's Columbus Division.

The study will be sponsored by a number of companies on a group basis and should be of particular interest to firms engaged in manufacturing agricultural materials as well as food, fragrance, and flavor products. It also should be of interest to companies manufacturing high performance materials that require adhesion, crosslinking, vulcanization, nucleation, and catalysis.

In addition, the study should benefit those companies manufacturing pharmaceuticals, animal nutrition products, and specialty agricultural chemicals, as well as those involved in certain areas of biomedical research and development.

Microencapsulation is the encasing of a small particle or droplet of one material such as a drug, seed, or pesticide, in a protective wall of another material. According to Dr. Peter Tausig, who heads Battelle's study team, the microcapsule allows delivery of a small amount of the active material where and when it is wanted, and in a form that does the most good.

"A microencapsulated birth control hormone, for example, releases effective levels of active ingredient over long periods of time, thereby reducing dosage levels, undesired side reactions, and costs."

Although microencapsulated materials have been industrial products for many years, new uses are continually being discovered, particularly in the food, pharmaceutical and agricultural industries. Battelle's study is evaluating the technical performance and economic competitiveness of microencapsulated materials in various applications.

In carrying out their study, Battelle researchers will collect and analyze data on encapsulated materials. They will describe properties and performance requirements, and identify other potential commercial applications.

In addition to forecasting markets, researchers will assess the impact of government regulations and analyze the state of the art in microencapsulation technology, processing, and application. Also to be analyzed are trends in new or improved processes and applications and economic impact of the technology.

Membership in the study is open to interested companies for $7,700. More information may be obtained from Dr. Peter R. Tausig, Battelle's Columbus Division, 565 King Avenue, Columbus, Ohio 43201, telephone 614-424-6549.

Grazon Herbicide Is Now Available In Pellets For Range And Pasture

DALLAS, TX — Grazon herbicide is now available in pellets in the Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico market, Larry Wee, product sales manager for Dow Chemical U.S.A., announced today.

The new herbicide formulation is available as Grazon 10K Pellets herbicide in 50-pound packages, Wee said. Two liquid formulations, Grazon P+D and Grazon PC herbicides, were introduced a year ago.

All three Grazon products contain picloram as a basic active ingredient. Grazon P+D also contains 2,4-D. Grazon PC can be tank mixed with 2,4-D, 2,4,5-T or silvex.

Grazon 10K Pellets control, reduce or suppress a wide range of broadleaf weeds and woody plants, including: broom snakeweed, prickly pear, tassel, jolla, cholla cactus, whitebrush, and shinnery oak, junipers (cedars), blackbrush, granjeno, guajillo, Macartney rose, multiflora rose, shrub live oak, Gambol oak, locust and sumac.

Grazon 10K Pellets may be applied as spot or broadcast treatments on perma-rent grass pastures, rangeland and fence rows. Moisture takes the picloram to the roots of the plant.

Wee said that, in addition to large-area broadcast treatments, landowners will find Grazon 10K Pellets convenient to carry in saddlebags or pickup truck and hand-treat small patches of undesirable brush or weeds. For example, as little as 3.75 ounces of pellets will treat 1,000 square feet of broom snakeweed.

One to two teaspoonfuls will kill a prickly pear plant that covers five square feet, Wee said. The same amount will take out a shoulder-high cedar.

Grazon 10K Pellets should be available at many local herbicide dealers. If they are not, landowners may ask their dealers to get them through the following distributor/agents, from whom they may also buy Grazon 10K direct if they possess a restricted-use permit:

Chem Tac, Inc., Fredericksburg, Texas; Donnell Ag Products, Graham, Texas; Estes Chemicals, Inc., Wichita Falls, Texas; Rushing Sheffield & Company, San Angelo, Texas, and V.A. Snell & Company, San Antonio, Texas.

FDA Approves Albadyr Plus for Treatment of Subclinical Mastitis

The dry cow intramammary infusion Albadyr Plus suspension is now available to dairy producers for use in treating subclinical mastitis caused by strains of Staphylococcus aureus and Streptococcus agalactiae.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently approved use of Albadyr Plus, making it the first over-the-counter dry cow product in the country to contain a penicillin-novobiocin combination. Albacillin, a lactating cow mastitis treatment which, like Albadyr Plus, is marketed by TUCO, Division of the Upjohn Company, contains the same antibiotics and is the only approved, over-the-counter mastitis treatment product for lactating cows in this country to contain two antibiotics.

Each 10 ml plasset of Albadyr Plus contains 200,000 IU penicillin G procaine, 400 mg novobiocin sodium and 60 mg chlorbutanol. At drying off, each quarter of the cow should be infused with the contents of a single 10 ml plasset of Albadyr Plus suspension. In accordance with FDA regulations, milk from treated cows must not be used for food during the first 72 hours after calving and treated animals must not be slaughtered for food for 30 days following under infusion.

Research conducted by The Upjohn Company has shown that Albadyr Plus is active against the most common bacteria associated with mastitis, a disease which affects an estimated 40 percent of all dairy cows in the U.S. According to the National Mastitis Council (NMC), the annual economic loss resulting from clinical and subclinical mastitis is $225 per cow per year. Subclinical mastitis, a condition not easily detected by the dairyman, is responsible for approximately two-thirds of this loss.

"In field trials involving over 800 cows in dairy herds across the country, Albadyr Plus proved effective in reducing the incidence of subclinical mastitis caused by Strep. ag. and Staph. aureus," says Paul Ludwig, product manager for TUCO. "We conducted research with 11 different combinations of penicillin and novobiocin in dry cow formulations on these cows; the most efficacious combination — 200,000 IU penicillin and 400 mg novobiocin — yielded a 98 percent least square cure rate for Strep. ag. and a 74 percent least square cure rate for Staph. aureus."

The NMC alerts dairymen that selective treatment (treating only diagnosed quarter infections) may miss 20-40 percent of infected udders at drying off. Therefore, it is recommended that dairymen using Albadyr Plus treat all quarters of all cows at drying off in order to gain maximum control and cure of subclinical mastitis.

Ford Promotes On-Farm Safety

To promote farm safety, Ford Tractor Operations is providing tractor safety decals to more than 250,000 farm families free-of-charge through a direct mail campaign in the United States and Canada.

Ford tractor dealers always have provided tractor safety decals as service parts and now also have supplies available free-of-charge for their customers, according to Larry Chuchman, marketing manager for Ford Tractor's North American Operations.

"Many of our tractors have been in use for 30 years or more and it's important to have a record of their use to understand how safety decals may have been damaged or painted over," Chuchman explains.

"By sending these safety decals to a quarter-of-a-million customers, we can help them to understand the importance of being safe on the farm," he says.

The safety labels are being sent to those installed on current production Ford tractors. The decals instruct operators on how to protect themselves and others while using the tractors.

"We're certain farmers are as conscious in their day-to-day operations, but safety decals can provide a reminder for all of us," Mr. Chuchman adds. "Taking a few minutes to read a decal and follow its instructions can prevent an unfortunate accident."

As part of Ford's continuing effort to promote farm safety, Ford Tractor Operations always has made right moment decals available through its system.

According to Jones, fertilizing with sulfur appears to be the best way to avoid sulfur deficiency in both crops and animals.

In the study, subclover and ryegrass fields that received an average of 40 lbs. sulfur per acre, in addition to recommended rates of N, P, and K, outyielded fields that received no sulfur. Subclover grown with sulfur averaged 4,250 lbs./acre. The check averaged 2,700 lbs./acre. On ryegrass, sulfur upped yields from 5,890 lbs./acre to 7,460 lbs./acre.

Fertilizing pastures with sulfur also improved the animals' average daily weight gain. Lambs fed pellets made from sulfur-fertilized clover gained 0.41 lb/day over a 57-day period, significantly more than the 0.31 lb/day gained with low-sulfur feed. Suppli-Mix® is a revolutionary new concept of feeding in the livestock industry. Ralco-mix Products, Inc., manufacturers Suppli-Mix, a 100% non-toxic micro feed supplement that helps livestock gain more from their home grown grains, hays, or grasses.

Suppli-Mix assures the presence of properties in the rumen which enables the organisms to flourish and multiply. Microbial protein production also occurs at this time which can reduce the use of commercial proteins and save you money.

Suppli-Mix also contains a special cobalt carbonate which assures livestock of the necessary minerals that enable the organisms in the rumen to produce Vitamin B12. This aids in the conversion of propionic acid which increases meat production.

Ralco has conducted various tests and university studies throughout the United States with Suppli-Mix. A leading southwestern university concluded that steers finished on Suppli-Mix gained faster and utilized feed more efficiently. Steers given Suppli-Mix in both the growing and finishing phases of the test program GAINED 10% FASTER AND REQUIRED 12% LESS FEED than the control animals.

The official report of the university study overstates: "Finished steers on a high-concentrate diet showed a marked improvement in gain and feed efficiency when Suppli-Mix was incorporated in the diet."

Another university study on cows and calves that were fed Suppli-Mix shows that the COWS GAINED 42 POUNDS MORE WEIGHT AND MAINTAINED HIGHER CONDITION SCORES than the comparable controls. Calves that were nursing cows during the supplemented period AVERAGED 50 POUNDS HEAVIER AT WEANING and in better condition than the control animals.

New Mexico State University recently ran a field trial test using various range supplements. Suppli-Mix was included in a new Summer Grass mix product and tested against other competitive products. The Suppli-Mix fed cattle responded with a .075 cost per pound of additional gain, versus the control group. While the competition's product cost ranged from a low of .222 to a high of $1.10 per pound of additional gain, Suppli-Mix's profitability was once again clearly evident in this control test.

Suppli-Mix aids in improving general health and reproductive ability. Suppli-Mix enables more protein to be digested and converted to gain. A non-medicated, 100% natural feed supplement, Suppli-Mix is also safe for horses and other livestock.

Medicated Suppli-Mix with Decox® provides you with all the benefits of Suppli-Mix, plus also aids in the prevention of coccidiosis in ruminating cattle caused by Eimeria berle and eimeria rurali.

A rather timid fellow was put in charge of a department. The man was so afraid of making a mistake that he couldn't make a decision. Gradually the entire department ceased to function. After several weeks of inactivity an exasperated supervisor finally sent the fellow a note: "It has come to my attention that the department you have been given is not being used. Since you seem unable to find a purpose for it, we were wondering if you might be willing to loan it back to the company for a while. We need it."

Ruminal Manipulation Increases Production Efficiency

Kansas City, Mo.—Manipulation of ruminal fermentation can increase the efficiency of animal production, reported Dr. Fred N. Owens, Oklahoma State University animal science researcher, at the 81st Annual Pfizer Research Conference.

"Although necessary for maximum utilization of cellulose and non-protein nitrogen, fermentation pays a penalty in lost energy in the form of methane and heat," he told participants of the conference. "The loss can be reduced with feed additives or drugs to alter the time feed remains in the rumen."

Ruminal fermentation also affects the efficiency of microbial production of protein, Owens said. "Limited availability of certain nutrients, such as nitrogen and sulfur, and varied other factors can reduce efficiency of microbial growth," he reported.

According to Owens, ruminal manipulation under feedlot conditions can increase livestock's energy utilization by over 10 percent. He also said that under range conditions, 20 percent advantages have been reported.

"Through some sacrifices are usually involved, ruminal manipulation has an immense potential," Owens said. "However, the cost-to-benefit ratio of different feeding and management conditions still needs to be defined."

The Pfizer Research Conference is held annually in conjunction with the national meeting of the American Feed Manufacturers Association. It features leading university authorities who report on their work in animal and poultry nutrition.

Agricultural, Irrigation Equipment Trade Mission This Fall

U.S. Agricultural and Irrigation Equipment Trade Mission to Morocco, Tunisia, and Algeria set October 23-November 14, 1983.

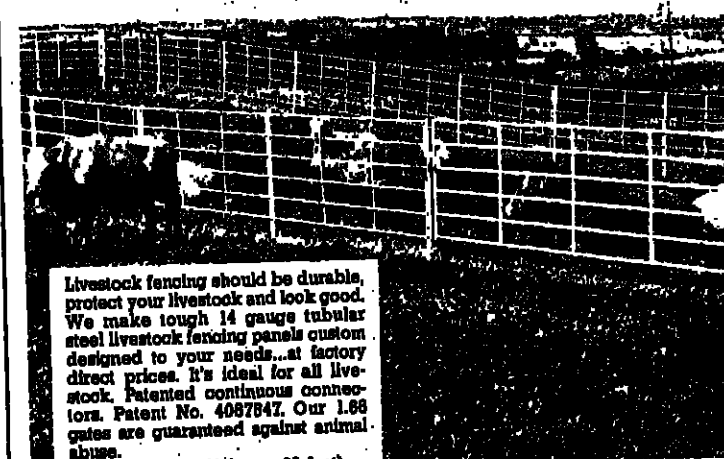

The governments of Morocco, Tunisia, and Algeria have given top priority to the development of agriculture and water resources. The current Moroccan Five Year Plan calls for increasing irrigated land from 700,000 to one million hectares. When King Hassan II visited the U.S. in 1982, a $200 million cereals production aid program for Morocco was announced.

In Tunisia's 1982-86 Five Year Plan, agricultural development is the key sector. Almost $12.5 billion in new investments is targeted for this period, with an emphasis on irrigation for increased cereals production. Algeria plans to spend $7.2 billion on agricultural programs and $7.5 billion on hydraulics programs under its 1980-84 Five Year Development Plan.

Projects include a massive land reclamation program, expansion of irrigated lands, increases in animal production (including poultry, eggs, dairy, and red meat), and intensification of the production of cereals, dry and fresh vegetables, and fruit. This trade mission affords members an excellent opportunity to meet key government officials, agents, and private sector buyers in confidential prearranged meetings and receptions. There are good sales prospects for all types of agricultural, irrigation, agricultural chemicals, and animal production equipment and supplies.

Preconditioning Program Boosts Cattleman's Profit Potential

Research and data on the performance of "preconditioned" calves have proven that a program of sound nutrition and good management will improve a cattleman's profit potential, says Dr. Danny Williams, manager of applied beef research for Ralston Purina Co.

A recognized preconditioning program, says Dr. Williams, should include:

• On day of weaning, calves should be put in small pens protected from weather extremes and be fed good, quality grass hay.

• From day two, and for 21 to 28 days, calves should be fed a medicated ration, like Preconditioning/Racelving Chow free choice, and be provided with plenty of fresh, clean water.

• All calves should be dehorned and, at three months, all bulls castrated.

• Vaccinations against blackleg and malignant edema should be administered immediately after weaning.

• A veterinarian should be consulted for advice on any other medication that might be necessary to ensure healthy calves.

• Calves should also be treated for all internal and external parasites.

• Sick calves should be separated from the herd immediately, and all remaining calves quickly treated for the same illness.

Under this model preconditioning program, Dr. Williams says, calves will be better prepared to overcome the shock and stress of weaning, better conditioned for shipping, and get off to a good start upon arrival at the feedlot. "Proper nutrition and health care, using a recognized preconditioning program, will help optimize production and profits," Dr. Williams concludes.

Beef Industry Faces Uncertainties Seen by Economists

Economists are not unanimous on all points, one they do share is that the beef industry is going to face a lot of competition for the consumer dollar in meat, grazing decisions, feeding rate, and costs of establishing and returns will provide an on-site view of accomplishments and methods including root pulling, prescribed burning will be seen. The tour route. The developing necessary facilities including fencing and specially designed pens to facilitate animal care and handling are featured.

There are some differences of opinion between the four economists on where the meat dollar will trend lower. While meat prices will put downward pressure on beef prices, the pace of the economic recovery could be an offsetting factor. They agree that an improved gross national product, generally higher levels of income and reduced inflation will give added strength to the cattle market.

As Reiser puts it: "It now looks like consumers are going to have more dollars to spend, and some of those extra dollars are going to go for beef."

Uvacek adds that it is more important than ever before that cattle producers and feeders become more cost conscious and market oriented, because "The survivors in the cattle business the next couple of years will be those who think marketing first and production second."

The seventh in the series of AFBF's Cattle Cycle Forums, in which the four economists will again participate, is scheduled in the Chicago area for Aug. 8.
